"I wanted to let you know how much I appreciate your kindness, dedication and the diligence that you displayed on your recent interaction with our daughter. I don't think people appreciate or comprehend the work you do and how important you are to children. I do and I thank you. We have begun to implement your suggestions, many are working already! We thank you - it was a rough past two years academically for her and we are so hopeful for her future. Thank you again."

Who We Are

Our assessments can help identify the nature and extent of many learning, behavioral, and emotional disorders.

We find the underlying causes of learning difficulties such as ADHD, motor skills disorders, communication disorders, mood disorders, disruptive behavior disorders, Autism Spectrum Disorder, congenital learning disabilities (LD) with sensory information processing deficits, inadequate education or a combination of these factors.

Planting the seeds of success

Are there times you think your child is capable of better performance in school but your are at a loss as to how to verify your concern?

Do you feel your child is not making effective progress in his or her current special education program?

Are you worried about your child's academic performance slipping and are you looking for a way to identify educational problems and address them? Neuropsychological and psycho-educational testing may be the answer.

What We Do

We provide comprehensive neuropsychological, psycho-educational, and psychological testing evaluations.

- Learning Disability Assessments
- ADHD Evaluations
- Forensic Psychological Examinations
- Fitness for Duty, Risk, and Dangerousness Assessments
- Parenting and Psychological Evaluations in Child Protection Matters
- Bonding and Psychological Evaluations of Children in Child Protection Matters

Our story

The Director, Dr. Andrews, has 27 years of clinical experience and is recognized in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as an expert witness in parenting and psychological evaluations in Juvenile Courts, forensic psychological examinations in Probate and Family Courts, neuropsychological assessments in Superior Courts, and child bonding evaluations in Federal Court.
